Will you marry me?

A successful marriage requires falling in love many times always with the same person.

How I plan to spend my life with you:

1.
2.
3.
4.
5.
6.

I love you.

Never leave a true relationship for a few faults. Nobody is perfect, nobody is correct in the end affection is always greater than perfection.
If you’re having trouble in your marriage or if you just want a stronger relationship with your spouse, try out these tips:

1. List 5 reasons God could love you
2. List 5 reasons God could love your spouse
3. List your 5 best personal qualities
4. List your spouse’s 5 best personal qualities
5. List and repent of the things which are keeping you from feeling the Spirit on a fairly consistent basis. Forgive yourself for the things you have truly repented of, and do what the Lord says He will do with our repented sins: remember them no more. [D&C 58:42]
6. Find some way to serve your spouse, and then serve them earnestly and selflessly. Don’t expect anything in return.
7. Pray together night and day, and think positively.

NEVER speak badly about your spouse to other people
You want an eternal marriage filled with love and trust, not gossip and disgust.

Stop using the word “SHOULD”
Own your feelings.

Give your partner ultimate respect
Relationships can’t survive when partners criticize negatively or put each other down. Remember: your spouse’s well-being and happiness are just as important as your own.

A Happy Marriage is the union of Two Good Forgivers

- Ruth Bell Graham